Concordia Historical Institute

Concordia Historical Institute exists to connect researchers of all kinds to the history of Lutheranism in America. Whether you are looking for an ancestor or researching for your dissertation, CHI is here to serve you.

Concordia Historical Institute Development Officer Mason Lindell leads a tour group through the archival stacks.

Partner with Concordia Historical Institute to rediscover your Lutheran history.

Whatever your connection to Lutheran history, Concordia Historical Institute is here to help.

Whether you are here to research the history of your parish or working on a chapter in your latest monograph, Concordia Historical Institute strives to be the best archive for you and your Lutheran history. As the premiere archive on North American Lutheranism, we have the documents and expertise to assist any researcher at any level of proficiency seeking information on Lutheranism in America. Our friendly and knowledgeable staff are ready to help you dive into our collections and rediscover your Lutheran history, no matter your interests, connections, or background.

If you are a researcher, genealogist, scholar, or supporter of all things historically Lutheran, consider becoming a member of the Institute today. In exchange for your vital financial support, you will receive the following benefits as a member:

- FREE entry to on-site reading room
